Madison School is a boarded up frame structure, one story with an attic, covered with weatherboarding and built on a concrete foundation. The facade consists of a gable and another portion. About in the center of the building, which is on the right hand side of the gable, is a porch and door. The porch is under the "A" roof of the gable. To the left of it is a pair of windows flanked by a single window on each side. To the right of the door is a range The rest of the building has a hip roof. of four windows. On each side are one or two hipped ventilators which actually look like dormers. On the east side are three windows and on the west side is a range of three windows. The back is not visible at present. It seems to be a typical early 20th century school structure, though the arrangement of the facade is somewhat different than most of the buildings of this period.
